"This is a new era for us. We are dealing with crimes we never had to deal with before." Peterson said at the Hancock County Sheriff's Department.

Although there is currently no strip club operating in the county, Peterson said he "received a (recent) telephone call and an office visit by a party who just wanted to let me know that a strip joint was coming to the county.

Peterson indicated the new wave of crimes would be coming from massage parlors, strip clubs and escort services.

Last year Bay St. Louis police made arrests for prostitution at a massage parlor, and Waveland recently made several arrests from a parlor in that

Peterson said, "Massage parlors in essence are legal, and we are not talking about massage parlors that are doing business legally, we are talking about the extra-curricular activities, such as prostitution."

Two arrests were made three weeks ago on an escort service, Peterson said.

"One can dial an 800- number and reach someone in Memphis, or someplace else and they can dispatch a prostitute for $150 cash, or $175 credit card," Peterson said.

Peterson did say not all escort services violated the law, but the one they investigated did.

Pine Hills would be boom for D'head

BY MARY G. SEILEY

The chief executive of the proposed Diamondhead casino complex says development of a neighboring casino at Pine Hills would be a boom for the

"As a competitor, we'd love to have them here," said Charles "Kip" Reddien, Casino World's chief executive officer, adding that Pine Hills complex would be "a real plus for the area.

Reddien said he hasn't been briefed on design details and couldn't comment on specifics of that proposal, however.

Both casino proposals -- at Diamondhead and just east of the Hancock County line in Harrison County -- have gotten site approval from the state Gaming Commission. Casino World would develop off I-10 at the Diamondhead exit, while Circus Circus Enterprises plans a complex at the Kiln DeLisle exit.

Several plans for the development of casinos off I-10 have surfaced over the past few years, only to be met with major opposition: some from nearby residents, some from existing casino operators, and some from state or federal regulatory agencies.

The two complexes now planned for the Bay of St. Louis, however, have cleared some lofty hurdles and appear poised to dodge other minefield areas, such as dredging. Casino World plans to offer two 66,000-square-foot casino barges in the Bay, accessed from land via monorails or some similar type of peoplemover system that won't disturb the marshlands. With roadways elevated over the property, all but 100 acres of the 400-acre tract will remain in a pristine state, said Reddien.

To accommodate concerns of the Corps of Engineers, the project will be built from the west toward the east, avoiding the need to put heavy equipment in sensitive areas.

When it's finished, Casino World would have a 450-room hotel, health club and spa, retail shops, restaurants, a nine-hole golf course and a entertainment center. Reddien said the complex also will feature a recreational vehicle park

Gulf Coast Fabrication kicks off Navy project

BY RICHARD MEEK

U.S. Representative Gene Taylor shed his Congressman look for a welder's vest and mask Friday to help kick off a $50 million project at Gulf Coast Fabrication - at Port Bienville Industrial Park.

Gulf Coast Fabrication, a subsidiary of Trinity Marine, Inc., recently landed a contract to build a pair of floating barracks for the Navy. The project is unique, company officials said, because it is the first time a military project is being built to commercial specifications, and not military specs.

"This is part and parcel of reinventing government," said Navy Capt. Dave Whitten during a keel laying ceremony at Gulf Coast Fabrication.

"This changes the way we do business," said Capt. Whitten, who supervises Naval contracts throughout the Gulf Coast region from his New Orleans office.

Following the brief ceremony, Taylor donned a welder's mask and vest, and began welding on the keel. Earlier, Taylor recalled how the United States has constructed military facilities in other countries, only to be kicked out of the country at a later date, leaving behind hospitals and barracks.

"We tried to get the Navy to start building things that float." Taylor said to the group of Gulf Coast employees that gathered to witness the cere-

Bay St. Louis city officials have appointed a licensing board for contractors and is launching a series of workshops to help them catch up with some major changes in the building and mechanical fields. The moves come as officials with a statewide building official association are preparing to rate every city and county building inspection and code enforcement effort in the state. Carrigee said in an interview.

The top criteria in the 1-to-10 rating system -- which will tractor to do the actual impact private insurance rates -- is to have adopted the current codes governing construction.

Jurisdictions with outdated codes, or none at all, will see their insurance rates escalate. said Carrigee. Last month, City Council agreed to adopt the most current versions of the Hancock County officials, meanwhile, have refused to consider adopting any building codes until some form of a zoning code has been adopted.

The push for up-to-date building code compliance comes from the devastating financial losses insurance companies have taken in Florida's recent hurricanes, said Carrigee.

Aside from updating its codes and appointing a licensing board, the city has closed one loophole that officials say was to blame for some substandard construction in Bay St. Louis. Under the old system, a private homeowner could obtain a building permit and hire a con-

Carrigee said city officials have put a stop to that practice. Now, homeowners can obtain permits for construction -- but only if the homeowner, or someone living in the dwelling, will be doing the actual construction work.

Carrigee said some unscrupulous, or unqualified, contractors have taken advantage of the system in the past, leaving homeowners with substandard work that has to be redone at the homeowner's expense.

Under the new system, the contractor will be held directly responsible for the quality of work and compliance with

While Bay St. Louis requires contractors to be licensed by the city, it has lacked a board to administer tests for those licenses. Carrigee said contractors seeking licensing have had to be tested in other cities in order to obtain a license to do work in Bay St. Louis.

That's discouraged some tradesmen from the licensing process, he said, because other municipalities don't put a high priority on testing out-of-city contractors.

Meanwhile, existing contractors need to know of substantial changes in the requirements of the building codes, he said. Carrigee keeps updated on the changes through semi-annual seminars and said local workshops will be scheduled twice yearly.

Passing the updated information on to contractors, he said, will help avert problems before they occur, and prevent costly reworking of substandard construction.

Members of the new licensing board are: Ken Monti (plumber); Dave Pernanich (electrician); Mike Mayo (mechanical); and Neil Favre (general contractor). One representative will be seated from Mississippi Power, and another from Coast Electric, from the engineering field. The building inspector will serve as an ex-officio

Pass utilities director will be disciplined

BY ED LEPOMA

Pass Christian Mayor Billy McDonald says Public Works Director Johnny Walters will. have to pay the consequences for selling city timber and using the proceeds to fund two parties for city employees.

The mayor said he asked the police department last Demember to conduct an investigation after two public works employees complained about Walters'

"And, Walters hasn't denied it happened," said McDonald. "I don't think he did anything with criminal intent, but it's now out of my hands."

Specifically, the investiga-tion found that, on two occasions, Walters had city workers. cut timber while clearing drainage ditches, and transport the! timber to B&S Timber on Hwy. 49 in Saucier, where it was sold.

The first sale occurred last Aug. 222 and the Saucier lym A beryand mide a check out for $236.46 payable to Walters. A second sale occurred last Nov. 11 before the Thanksgiving holidays, and another check was issued to Walters for

McDonald said Walters told him he used the proceeds from both sales to throw a summer picnic for city workiers last August, and a fall party last November. Walters said it was an effort to boost employee morale, and to show workers he appreciated the job they were

He said the decision to sell some of the timber last August to sponsor the picnic was made on the "spur of the moment."

Walters didn't keep receipts for supplies he purchased for the August picnic, but he kept receipts from the November party, which showed he spent $229.42, including $82.93 to purchase a hog from C.J. Davis

McDonald said Ward 1 Alderman Jeff Emerson and Ward 3 Alderman Michael Antoine want to fire Walters after an administrative hearing, but he's leaning toward recommending a "suspension without pay" for a period of time.

McDonald said Walters has offerred to repay the city for the cost of the parties, and some public works employees have also pledged money to help Walters repay the debt.

Walters was hired in May of 1994, and before the 1996 operating budget was adopted for fiscal 1996, his job was put under protection of the city's Civil Service system.

Last December, after McDonald took office, department heads who were left out of the initial round of raises given city employees in the budget, were granted four percent raises.

Walters' salary went from $27,500 yearly, to $28,600.

Bay police schedule public meetings in housing projects

BY MARY G. SEILEY Bay St. Louis police plan a series of meetings in area public housing projects this spring and summer, including women's safety programs, parenting workshops and a push for new Neighborhood Watch program participation.

The meetings are part of a $50,000 grant recently secured by the city Housing Authority for drug and crime prevention in the authority's Bay Pines, Bay Oaks and Magnolia housing projects.

Some segments of the effort cock Community Task Force to Save our Children. That group plans to provide drug prevention programming for children, youth and young adults and daily assistance with homework.

Police, meanwhile, have stepped up patrols in the housing subdivisions and have assigned Officer Earnest Taylor to a satellite office on the Housing Authority grounds.

"Community policing is something that the Bay St. Louis Police Department has been practicing long before it was fashionable," said Chief Frank McNeil. "It means communicating with people and intervening through communication and through prevention."

McNeil said Taylor and his team of community policing officers will intervene to prevent drug usage and drug related crime. The officers also will conduct workshops and meetings in the housing developments.

Meanwhile the Authority has begun issuing parking permits for residents on its property. Visitors will be required to obtain passes through the Authority office for stays of more than 24 hours.

will be conducted by the Han-School district, Exxon close to lease settlement

BY TRACI BONNEY

The Hancock County School District is near completing a lease settlement with Exxon for $48,000, according to school board attorney Steve Benvenutti.

Exxon representative Billy Andrews confirmed in a telephone conference at Monday's regular school board meeting that Exxon and the school district had agreed in principle to the settlement, which stemmed from a 16th Section mineral lease problem.

"We will try to negotiate an appropriate settlement document with Exxon which states that the company has no further interest in royalties from the 1960 lease of the land," he said.

Benvenutti said a State Supreme Court ruling in 1985 made mineral rights leases of 16th Section Land valid for only 25 years, not for as long as the wells produced, which had been the belief until that time. That ruling effectively cancelled the leases from that date.

Following the court's ruling, Exxon filed suit in federal court and named several school districts with which it had mineral leases, including Hancock Benvenutti said the federal court upheld the state court's judgment, which led to the current settlement process between the school district and oil company.

The settlement, if accepted and signed by all concerned parties, will require Exxon to pay $48,000 plus interest on royalties gained between 1985 and 1990, when Exxon ceased operation of the two gas wells in question.

Benvenutti said a separate issue is the negotiation of a replacement lease between the school district and the current lessee, Kelly Oil Company.

"The school board negotiated with Kelly Oil, which culminated in 1994 with a letter that the company would provide a one-fifth royalty to the district on the two wells that are currently in production," Benvenutti said. "Any future wells would provide a one-fourth royalty to the district, and Kelly Oil Company would also pay all past due royalties, dating from

"All this was agreed to in principle, but nothing was ever contracted.'

Being informed on zoning a must

The mention of a comprehensive zoning ordinance frightens many people, yet it is necessary for our county's future.

As Hancock County Board of Supervisors President Philip Moran said last Monday, "The majority of folks won't be affected. The main goal (zoning) is to keep commercial development out of residential areas. We want to protect our residents."

Bravo to our Hancock County Board of Supervisors for moving forward and scheduling four public hearings in order to receive input from the general public.

The supervisors are working with the Gulf Regional Planning Commission on a draft drawn by the Southern Mississippi Planning Commission, which was presented last March to the previous elected county leaders.

Hancock County is growing at a rapid rate, and this is good, but we also need an orderly growth.

All one has to do is drive about the county and note the combinations of residential, commercial buildings, etc., to show the need for zoning.

A property owner can now just about run any type of business anywhere within the county.

This could be a lounge, cement factory, strip parlor, massage parlor, creosote plant, burrow pit, asphalt plant, etc., and these operations could operate next to almost any property owner.

There will be false truths floating about. Do not believe them all.

We urge all residents to attend at least one of the public hearings to get the correct facts.

Hearing times are 7 p.m., Mon., Feb. 26, Gulfview Elementary, Lakeshore; Wed., Feb. 28, Charles B. Murphy, Pearlington; Mon. Mar. 4, and Wed., Mar. 6, Hancock High School, Stennis Drive.

CUEVAS QUOTES"

By Ellis C. Cuevas

Today at 1 p.m., is the big celebration day for the Krewe of Nereids, as the organization celebrates its 30th Anniversary Mardi Gras parade.

When the Krewe of Nereids hit the streets of Waveland some 30 years ago, it was hard to envision the organization would still be rolling with a spectacular parade 30 years later.

A few of the original ladies of Nereids are still very active in the organization, along with others who have joined over the years.

The parade forms at the Choctaw Plaza Shopping Center, travels Highway 90 East to Bouslog, Highway 90 West to Our Shopping Center to disband.

Since its first parade, the Krewe of Nereids has been a very popular Mississippi Gulf Coast parade. One would be surprised at the number of New Orleans residents who visit us for the parade.

I urge everyone to have a good time at the parade, but also to use good judgement. Parents need to keep an eye on the youngsters, and motorists need to drive with extreme caution in the area today.

Happy 30th Anniversary to everyone associated with the Krewe of Nereids.

I hope to see you at the parade this afternoon.

FROM THE MISSISSIPPI SENATE

By State Senator Scottie Cuevas

Committee deadline sends bills to Senate floor

Submitted by Senator Scottie R. Cuevas

Floor action heated up last week - from debate on bills to allow supervisors to dig graves to revoking all state licenses from parents who fail to pay court-ordered cild support.

Tuesday, Feb. 6 was the deadline for each house's committees to decide on bills originating in that house, so much of our time early in the week took place outside in committees. More than 200 of the 900 filed were reported out for consideration by the full Senate.

our time deciding the fate of these bills under the pressure of our next deadline — Feb. 15 for floor action on bills originating in the Senate.

While we've been working on our bills, the House has been doing the same on its bills. After a bill is passed in one chamber, it goes to the other to start the committee process all over again. If a bill makes it through the second house without changes, it can go straight to the Governor for veto or

If a bill is changed but wins approval in the second house. its house-of-origin must agree to the changes or it goes to a conference committee. The conference committee, composed of appointed Senators and Representatives, hashes out the differences. Then the bill returns to the Senate or House for concurrence or further action.

In these final stages, it's possible for a bill to go back and forth from House and Senate to conference and back through various changes until some resolution occurs - either it gets approved or it dies under the conference report deadline.

ON THE FLOOR On Wednesday, 50 bills were passed by the ful Senate, among

-To revoke all state licenses from persons who fall more than 60 days behind in paying their court-ordered child support'

- To authorize school districts to participate in fundraising activities;

- To establish Teen Court pilot programs in Jackson, Washington and Rankin counties to allow teenagers to decide punishment for some juvenile offenders; and

To create a Pre-Paid Affordable College Tuition Program.

While they were not controversial, two wildlife bills were approved. The first waived the penalty for a duck hunter, who has purchased a duck stamp but fails to have it in his or her possession. The second authorized the Wildlife Fisheries & Parks director to develop a special wildlife credit card.

Some of the hottest floor debate centered around two bills to authorize county boards of supervisors to build private driveways and to dig graves. The driveway bill was defeated, but the grave-digging bill passed with narrow limits for persons who could not afford to use a private service.

CONSUMER BILLS

Two consumer protection bills also were among those we passed last week. The first bill requires water and sewerage utilities to publish rate hike notices in local newspapers and customer invoices. The second bill requires a new title to be issued for vehicles declared "totalled" but later repaired for sale - giving the potential customer information about the vehicle's history.

On Thursday, we passed 57 bills, among them:

— To require prison inmates to pay certain court costs when they file frivolous lawsuits against the state;

- To make it easier for county tax collectors to collect ad valorem taxes on mobile homes; — To notify the victim prior to a sex offender's release; and To give 10 percent pay raises to county officials.

On Friday, the Senate approved several bills before adjourning for the weekend. The most significant was the socalled "Motor Voter" Bill, which allows state voter registration in drivers' license renewal stations and in other agencies designated by the Secretary of State's Office. The bill included an amendment to deny registration to any persons who are convicted felons.

Until "Motor Voter" becomes state law, persons who register outside the courthouse under the Federal "Motor Voter" law will only be registering to vote in federal elections.

I am here to represent you to the very best of my ability. To do that, I need to hear from you about bills before the Senate. Please call me or write to me with your opinions.

Dear Editor,

Way not limit letters to the editor to 100 to 150 words? If persons cannot within 100 to 150 words get their points across — the topic is not of interest.

Two letters recently took up over one-third page. These people are using letters to the editor as a platform for their views,

REFLECTIONS ON LIFE

By Father Jerome LeDoux, SVD

"Look at those dogs! They're I had to visit Mae Mae,

I was not quite ready for such fire and excitement out of someone whom the doctor had all but given up for dead just a few for New Roads, a quiet, pictur-months before. Mae Mae esque town nestled along the Gauthier was all wrapped up into the fate and fortune of the Dallas Cowboys.

Of all those which I have seen in whole or in part, Super Bowl XXX turned out to be the most memorable and meaningful. It did not start out that way. In fact, Sunday fatigue urged me to chill and spend the day alone for the most part.

Then, on the spur of the moment, I decided to hit the highway and spend the time visiting with one of my dear friends. Fatigue and all, I know although she was a two-hour drive from New Orleans.

Scooping up another friend enroute in Baton Rouge, I made banks of False River, one of the five ox bows of Louisiana. We caught the first quarter of the game on the radio.

A beaming Mae Mae greeted us at the door, overwhelmed and overjoyed to have Super Bowl company.

"I can't scream the way I usually scream when I'm by myself," she observed, "but I do have to get into cheering for my Cowboys.

And shout she did with body English and punctuation at every rise and fall of the pokes from Dallas. Yet, amid all the

Biscuit Tortoni

Some of the world's most delicious desserts, strange as it may seem, are also among the easiest to make. For example, there's Biscuit Tortoni, or Bisque Tortoni, as it's also known, one of Italy's many sweet concoctions, a delicate melange of cream and sugar and almond macaroons and Curious as always, I searched for the origins of the name; and I learned that the "Tortoni" supposedly came from the name of a 19th century Italian restaurant owner living in Paris. And, my dictionary defines "bisque" in the first place as a "thick cream soup" — of which we usually think when hearing the name "bisque." But it also defines "bisque" as "an ice cream made of heavy cream, with powdered nuts or macaroons.

And, inasmuch as "biscuit" is also spelled "bisque" you can see how it all came about. But, we don't really need to know all that to enjoy:

Children's Book Festival

The 29th annual Children's Book Festival will be at the University of Southern Mississippi March 6-8. The USM Medallion, which honors a lifetime of work in children's literature, will be presented this year to Patricia MacLachlan.

MacLachlan is author of numerous works, including Sarah, Plain and Tall and Skylark, which were produced as television movies as part of the Hallmark Hall of Fame series.

For information on the festival, contact USM's Department of Continuing Education at Box 5136, Hattiesburg, MS 39406-5136 or (601) 266-4186.

1 dozen almond macaroons, crumbled

Whip the eggs, and set aside. Whip the cream. When it's almost to the peak, add the sugar very, very gradually. Fold in the egg whites very gently. Add the sherry and the macaroons, reserving some crumbs for sprinkling atop.

Fill small fluted paper cups (or small dishes) with the mixture and sprinkle crumbs atop. Cover with waxed paper and place in the freezer until quite firm. Top each with a cherry if desired. (8 servings)

Another of my easy spur-ofthe moment, or spur-ofdesperation desserts, came I had come about this way home with a half gallon of a super French vanilla custard ice cream and for some reason left it in the car. By the time I remembers the ice cream, it was a soupy mess. Remembering the delicious burnt almond ice cream we had enjoyed at the restaurant, I crumbled some cookies into the soupy cream, toasted some almonds and added them, and refroze the whole thing. I could have used pecans — think that I'll try that soon!

'Arthritis is bending my right knee in," Mae inserted. "The doctor says surgery can straighten it out. Old Arthur just gets to me sometimes. I take medication for it. Look at those dogs again! They're trying to knock him down!"

For a welcome change, a Super Bowl which started out looking like a rout-in-the-making turned into a tense, gripping struggle for supremacy. As minutes elapsed, the Steelers made the Cowboys chew more and more on their fingernails.

"I'm warming some juice for you," Mae squeezed in between the play-by-play." "I know you can eat a little gumbo. It will be ready in just a little while." Her attention rotated back to her beloved Cowboys and their task at hand.

"My little church is doing better now," she picked up after a series of plays. "My pastor is young, energetic and understanding. Why don't you come shouting and joshing, there to visit my church some time? were serious strains of talk We have services at 11 in the morning.'

Even with a modest lead, the Cowboys being panned on the TV showed considerable stress and anxiety as the clock ticked down below the two-minute warning. Not a smile erupted until a final failed fourth-down try by the Steelers.

By that time, Mae Mae had discoursed on her husband Catin (Cahtain), already seven years into eternity, on the sickness in her family, on the marriages of her daughters, and finally back to the unspeakable fortune of her beloved Cowboys.

I have a great interest in virtually all sports, but the super bowl played second fiddle to Mae Mae. Without realizing it, she was the best color person available for the game. At the same time, she was being comforted and healed by talking.

Not everyone has a great interest in sports and the super bowl in particular. What we all do have in common is the joy, reassurance and healing of sharing all God's gifts.

Staying fit during winter

For persons who are constantly in pursuit of physical fitness, winter doesn't have to be an excuse to pack away our running shoes and warm-ups. According to Petra Schuler of Mississippi State University, the winter months should not hamper fitness activities,

"You really have a lot of options for maintaining good health and physical fitness during the winter," said the assistant professor of physical education, health education and recreation.

"Of course, you can join a health club, which would offer you a full range of fitness options from cardiovascular and aerobic training to weight and strength training," she said

"A lot of gym exercises can be done at home with dumbbells or hand weights," Schular said. "Also, you can get an exercise tape or catch a fitness program on television and follow along." She even suggests continuing outdoor fitness activities, such as jogging, provided certain precautions are taken.

Being in the South, we really don't have a great deal to worry about in the way of cold," she said. "Nevertheless, warm. dress is important. Appropriate items are sweat pants and shirt and a jacket or windbreaker."

Also important are a hat and gloves. "We lose a majority of our heat through the surface area of the head, and extremities, such as gingers, are more subject to the cold.

Schuler advises a good warmup before beginning outdoor exercises. "Make sure you warm up properly before jogging, especially if it's really cold outside.

He added that in recent years, other countries have jumped ahead of the United States in shipbuilding. He said, however, that "this is the place to turn it around, in places like Hancock County with people like vou."

Navy personnel said the barges will be used at Naval shipyards where major repairs and overhauls work is being performed on large vessels, such as aircraft carriers or submarines.

Gulf Coast official Dan Mortimer said the contract is "unique because of the type of business we will do.'

office rated the building as having "negative value," according to a report by the committee. The building, last used in the spring of 1991, has faced a myriad of obstacles in the last several years. Waveland Public Utilites Director Steve Landry said it would cost the city at least $173,000 to adequately restore the building to meet city codes. Further research indicated that Civic Center is not eligible for historic grants from the state since it is not registered on the National Register of Historic Places and is not designated as a Mississippi landmark. Had either of the criteria been met, the center may have received priority funding.

Since the center is not a historic transportation facility, it does not qualified to receive Transportation Enhancement

Further investigation revealed that the only funding sources available would be through loans, bonds or a property tax increase, ideas the aldermen have previosuly nixed.

One fish kill reported/because of cold

Although only one fish kill has been reported, biologists with the Mississippi Department of Marine Resources, caution that recent cold weather may cause problems in the marine environment.

"We checked out a fish kill in Bayou Portage in Harrison County which killed white mullet," said Mike Buchanan of DMR's Fisheries Division. "White mullet seems to be the main fish affected."

Coastal fish-eating birds are taking advantage of the temperature-shocked dead fish, providing the birds with extra energy to deal with the low temperatures, he said. These fish are not harmful to birds.

Other impacts associated with these low temperatures may take several days to detect. For example, oysters that have been exposed at low tide may take several days to die, and birds that have been injured by the cold may become weakened and begin to starve.

Anyone with information about fish kills is asked to call DMR at 385-5860. Injured birds or mammals should be reported to the Wildlife Rehabilitation and Nature Preservation Society at 452-WILD.

FINANCIAL FOCUS

Submitted by Craig Foster Edward Jones Co.

As time passes, our lifestyles change. In the erly years of starting a career and family, most of us have relatively modest lifestyles. As we progress in our carers and our children grow, our lifestyles probably include a few more creature comforts.

As our lifestyles change, so should our investments. Choosing the right investment for a particular stage of life used to be the investor's responsibility. A 30-year-old planning for retirement, for example, might select an aggressive growth fund. A retiree, on the other hand, would opt for a more conservative income fund.

Mutual Fund families encouraged investors to change funds within their families as their age and investment needs changed. However, many investors were unable to make informed changes, so mutual funds introduced asset allocation funds, designed for different investors at different life stages. Rather than the shareholder having to choose the balance between stocks and bonds, asset allocation funds allow the fund managers to do of all fund categories.

Still, some mutual fund man. agers argued that a singlepurpose asset allocation fund may not provide the proper diversification for different age groups. So today, there's a new wrinkle to these popular funds: lifestyle funds.

These funds still offer the advantage of asset allocation that varies according to age group, but they have more restrictive objectives, such as growth, balanced or conservative. Lifestyle fund managers still have the latitude to move assets among stocks, bonds and other securities, but within a more specific category.

Sounds a lot like a typical mutual fund. What's the difference? Asset allocation allows the fund manager the discretion to move into sectors that or the most protection. The typical mutual fund is restricted by the fund's limited objective.

For example, a typical smallcapital, aggressive growth fund does not have the option to "safe-harbor" assets in bluechip stocks or bonds if conditions make such investments more favorable.

It is limited by prospectus to small or emerging company stocks, regardless of market conditions. Lifestyle funds, on the other hand, have more latitude, offering the potential for a smoother ride through the ups and downs of the market and the economy.

However, most professionals agree that lifestyle funds are not for everyone. Sophisticated investors may prefer more sayso in how their assets are allocated. But for investors who are willing to leave the decision to their funds' managers, lifestyle funds may be appropriate.

While their ability to move into safer investments during uncertain times can limit performance, it also offers greater protection of principal.

Major changes are looming on the horizon in the banking, gaming and tourism industries, according to speakers at Hancock Bank's 30th annual Economic Symposium held Tuesday in the Mississippi Coast Coliseum and Convention

Nationally known financial consultant James M. McCormick, president of First Manhattan Consulting, Inc, New York, NY, opened the symposium with an overview of the banking industry.

McCormick said financial institutions must become more customer focused. "National growth in the banking business. is actually shrinking when adjusted for inflation. The status quo is no longer good

The key to turning this trend is to maintain good customer relations, convenient locations and providing products customers will buy. "Banks make the majority of their profits from just 20 percent of their customers. This means the rest, or 80 percent of all bank customers are unprofitable. Non-bank financial companies are after your best customers. McCormick disspelled several myths about the banking industry. His charts, based on nationwide studies, indicated higher-income or long-term customers were not necessarily the most profitable. He also stated some banks were beginning to limit or charge for services which have traditionally been provided at no cost to the customer. This move is to encourage people to use automated teller machines more often and to rely less on teller transactions, which are more labor intensive and thus more

Following McCormick's speech, Hancock Bank Chairman and Chief Executive Officer Leo W. Seal, Jr. said, "We (Hancock Bank) plan to be a survivor and an acquirer."

Seal told the audience that Hancock Bank had survived the Great Depression and many hurricanes; that the bank was the first on the Coast to offer drive-thru banking; installed the first main frame computer and pioneered the use of ATMs; and that the bank was in strong financial shape.

"We try to make money with our customers, not on them," Seal added.

Rear Admiral Paul G. Gaffney, II, Commander, Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command, Stennis Space Center, was the next presenter

Most of the Navy's oceanography research is based at Stennis. They also have one of the world's most powerful super computers, which is expected to be upgraded soon. The organization employs more than 1,500 people, mostly civilian, with an annual payroll over $90 million. Seventy percent of these employees live in Mississippi.

"We're very interested in local affairs. We're not just passing through. The quality of life here is important to us. This is our home," Gaffney said of the Coast.

"We employ a highly educated work force which, in turn, places a high priority on quality education. The 1995 valedictorians from St. John High, Coast Episcopal High, Bay High, St. Stanislaus, and Pope John Paul in Slidell are children of our Navy employees. The 1995 salutatorian from Our Lady Academy is also the daughter of a Navy contract employee. This speaks volumes for the quality of our people and the importance they place on quality education.

Gaffney has eight research vessels stationed in various locations, some of which were build in Coast shipyards. "We need to keep building ships in them right here on the Coast. 'We have world-class ability to gather and interpret oceanography information. We need to stabilize and continue to grow at Stennis."

America and to keep building

Grand Casinos, Inc. executive vice president Thomas J. Brosig was the final presenter at the symposium.

The catalyst exists for Mississippi to become a national destination," Brosig stated.

Eighty-five percent of all adults approve of gaming, and over 29 million of them visited Las Vegas in 1995. The Coast has more jobs, higher wages, an increase in tourism and much higher tax revenues since ing was legalized, according to "Tourists need a reason to come, a place to stay and a way to get here. Regular, dependable, affordable jet service is needed. Gaming, not business travel, will bring jet service back to the Coast," Brosig said.

The speaker also said local officials and politicians should pay more attention to the casinos already in operation and paying taxes on the Coast. "It's a long, long way from announcing a project and then following it through to completion. Just look at the Donald Trump project in Gulfport. Brosig stated the failures of some casinos on the Coast were "not because of the market, but because of their operators or location." He said these failures and other factors hurt the perception of the market in the eyes of Wall Street. This in turn made it more difficult for some operators to obtain funding. Brosig said Coast gaming revenues had already exceeded all expectations. He drew a chuckle from the audience when he mentioned one casino industry analyst's report, which was widely circulated, predicting the boom in Coast casinos would be short-lived. The same analyst predicted that New Orleans would become the next Vegas.

"Gaming will continue to grow on the Coast, but at a slower rate." Brosig said gaming taxes now represent 10 percent of Mississippi's state budget. He then reminded everyone that Nevada residents do not pay any personal state income

Grand Casinos will build a new golf course east of Highway 49 on Highway 53, as well as a new hotel, convention center and water park at both Gulfport and Biloxi, according to Brosig. Total cost will be around $130 million.

When asked about news reports of other big-name casinos coming to the Coast, Brosig replied, "The Golden Nugget is almost as good as the Grand. I welcome the opportunity to

PERS among nation's top pension funds

The Public Employees' Retirement System of Mississippi (PERS) remained as the nation's 70st largest pension fund in the latest annual rankings, based upon market value of assets, but grew nearly 50% faster than the average for the top 1,000.

Pensions & Investments magazine, a Chicago-based biweekly, publishes its annual list of the nation's 1,000 largest public and private pension funds each year in January, with rankins based upon assets as of the previous Sept. 30, the end of the federal fiscal year. PERS' assets as of Sept. 30, 1995 totaled 9.002,000,000, according to Pension & Investments, an increase of 22% over the figure of $7,368,000,000 reported by the magazine for PERS as of Sept. 30, 1994. Total assets for the 1,000 largest funds grew 15%, to $3.128 trillion. The funds benefited from a strong performance by money markets during the year, especially compared to the previous 12-month period when assets for the 1,000 largest funds grew by only 2.2% (2.5%for PERS).

Of the 183 public pension funds in the top 1,000, PERS is 36th in the latest rankings. Its 22% growth during the year is seventh best among the 50 largest public pension funds.

TIAA-CREF, a nationwide pension fund for professional educators, is the nation's largest, according to Pensions & Investments, with assets totaling $153.6 billion. Others in the top 10 are California Public Employees ($92.6 billion), Gen-/ eral Motors ($72.0 billion), New York State and Local Employees ($71.5 billion) California State Teachers ($58.3 billion),

AT&T (57.1 billion) New York State Teachers ($49.5 billion), Florida State Employees ($47.7 billion), Texas Teachers ($46.1 billion) and New York City Employees ($41.7 billion).

Following are the latest rankings of public retirement systems in surrounding states (with last year's rank and the percentage increase in parenthesis):

Tennessee Consolidated Retirement System — 41st with assets of $15.1 billion (43rd, 16% increase).

Alabama Retirement Systems - 48th with assets of $14:1 billion (42nd, 9%).

Teachers Retirement System of Louisiana -102nd with assets of $5.9 billion (91st, 5% increase).

Arkansas Teachers Retirement System — 139th with assets of $4.2 billion (145th, 21% increase). Louisiana State Employees' Retirement System — 149th with assets of $3.9 billion

(150th, 18% increase). Arkansas Public Employees

Retirement System — 215th with assets of $2.5 billion (232nd, 20% increase).

Woolmarket tower turned on Cellular South has turned on a new 400-foot cell site in Woolmarket. The tower, which was completed Feb. 7, has been strategically located to provide improved cellular coverage in the Woolmarket community as well as segments along Interstate 10 and surrounding areas.

The new cell site will also provide improved cellular phone coverage for portable hand-held phones in the Woolmarket area. In addition to the Woolmarket cell site, Cellular South recently turned on a new tower in Long Beach which will enhance cellular coverage in downtown Long Beach, Hwy. 90 and surrounding areas.

Keith White, area manager, said, "Cellular South is constantly looking for ways to improve service to our customers. These two new cell sites are evidence that Cellular South is determined to provide the best cellular service possible on the Mississippi Gulf Coast."

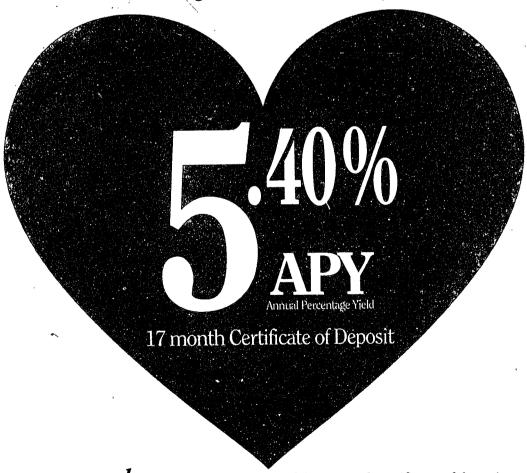

The Mississippi Gulf Coast is served by Cellular South with retail locations in Bay St. Louis, Gautier and Gulfport and sales locations in the five Gulf Coast Wal-Mart stores.

Cellular South began providing cellular service on the Mississippi Gulf Coast in 1988. The new Woolmarket cell site is the 17th tower build by the company on the Gulf Coast.

Kole is particularly known for performing benefit concerts, as well as for his myriad favors toward small groups. Over the years, Bing Crosby, Jerry Lewis, Bob Hope, Fats Domino, Kole and a host of stars have generously appeared to support this event.

This year, for the first time, the ACC function was in honor of Ronnie Kole, a fitting tribute

TAKE ANOTHER ASPIRIN & IGNORE THE OBVIOUS.

Headache pain is often a warning signal to the body that something is wrong. Yet, often when we get rid of the pain, we're ignoring the problem behind it. There are many causes of headaches. One of the most frequent is misalign-ment of one or more of the small spinal bones in the neck. When these CERVICAL VERTE-BRAE are displaced, the nerves between them are affected. Headaches of all kinds may result, migraines, pain at the base of the skull, behind the eyes or the forehead.

Our doctors at Hoda Chiropractic Clinics are experienced in treating headaches of this kind, can restore cervical vertebrae to their proper positions, thus halting the painful nerve interference which causes some headaches.

When you have a headache, see Dr. Desmond Hoda.

Amtrak to continue Crescent train four days a week service along the Southern Crescent route from Atlanta to New Orleans has prompted Amtrak to extend its four-day service through the coming summer, U.S. Senator Trent Lott said.

In December 1994, Amtrak told Lott, who chairs the Senate Surface Transportation Subcommittee, that it intended to decrease service frequency on the Southern Crescent from daily to three days a week.

Late last year, Amtrak, at Lott's urging, initiated a trial period during which the Crescent would have four-day-aweek service instead of three. That four-day-a-week trial period was due to expire in February.

"It turns out that during that interim period, Amtrak learned what Mississippi already knows: that regular Amtrak service is necessary to support the demands for rail travel in our state," Lott said. "This/is tremendous news for Mississippians who board Amtrak in Meridian, Hattiesburg and Picayune."

"For Mississippi, Amtrak's link to the rest of the nation are critical to our tourism industry, to municipal and regional economies and to the needs of individuals who have no other means of traveling/long distances." Lott said.

Lott, who has introduced legislation in the Senate to pre-

Mississppians' demand for serve Amtrak as a national rail passenger system as it moves toward privatization, said he has always maintained that communities which support Amtrak and can demonstrate that support through increased ridership would be given the opportunity for full service.
"I am very pleased that Amtrak is working with Mississippi's communities along the Crescent route to provide us the opportunity to increase service and to eventually achieve what I hope will be a restoration of daily service," Lot said.

In addition to the four-day service, Lott said Amtrak also will provide daily New Orleans to Atlanta service for the duration of the 1996 summer Olympics which are being held in ARIES - March 21/April 20 Avoid getting involved in loved ones' quarrels. If asked for your opinion, just plead the Fifth. A friend who's going through a hard time may need a shoulder to cry on. A little sensitivity will go a long way. A realistic look at finances could make you rethink a major purchase.

TAURUS - April 21/May 21 Accept a last-minute invitationespecially if it is somewhat unusual. A little spontaneity is what you need to put the spark back in your fire. A Libra in your life may have something serious to talk about. Listen with an open ear and put that Taurean stubbornness to the side.

GEMINI - May 22/June 21 If you're not careful, indecision could make you miss an opportunity. Instead of carefully weighing the pros and cons, let your gut instinct lead the way. In matters of love, you could be in for an emotional barrier later in the week — especially if you're involved with a Scorpio.

CANCER - June 22/July 22 Take advantage of free time by doing what you love to do — relaxing! Any financial worries will be relieved as an unexpected windfall is likely to come your way. A love relationship will bring warm feelings — especially if you are involved with a Libra. A trip down the slopes is in the stars!

LEO – July 23/August 23 A feeling of contentment in where you are and what you're doing will make you more productive and effective in your daily life. Loving what you do is a sure way to make Leo the Lion yell out a hearty roar. A troubled friendship could lead to permanently severed ties if you're not careful.

VIRGO – Aug 24/Sept 22 Something good will come out of a bad, ongoing situation. You'll realize that everything has a way of balancing out. An upcoming social event gives you a lot to look forward to. A little planning will make things extra special. Conflict in the workplace could lead to aggravation.

LIBRA - Sept 23/Oct 23 A pleasant surprise comes from a loved one in an exceptionally good mood. Enjoy! Depend on no one but yourself when it comes to important work projects. Remember, not everyone is as reliable as you are. An old friend will be in touch and may even pay a surprise visit towards the week's end. Keep fitness a priority.

SCORPIO - Oct 24/Nov 22 surprise phone call from an old flame will weigh heavily on your mind this week — but try not to let it interfere with your current love relationship, Living in the past is no way to get ahead. Sever past ties and move on. Money matters will be an issue later in the week.

SAGITTARIUS - Nov 23/Dec 21 There are two sides to every story and it's time you looked at both. You pride yourself on being fair, but it's not always the case. Take a step back and see what the big picture really is. You may be in for a big surprise. Remember, your way is not the only way.

CAPRICORN - Dec 22/Jan 20 Accept last-minute invitations and you could be in for a pleasant surprise. Single? If so, this could be a lucky week. There could be a sexy Scorpio waiting in the wings. Be careful, though. Wear your heart on your sleeve, and you could feel the pain of Scorpio's sting.

AQUARIUS - Jan 21/Feb 18 You may feel taken advantage of by a selfish family member. Remember, not everyone is as giving as you are. If you're in the business world, this could be a time for advancement. Be your own advocate and you're sure to get noticed. Luck will be on your side later in the week.

PISCES – Feb 19/March 20 Don't be surprised if you get the cold shoulder from a friend. Your enigmatic personality may be too much to keep up with. If you're hot one moment and cold the next, how will people know how to read you? If you want more understanding friends, seek out a fellow fish.

Smithsonian interns

The Smithsonian Institution is offering six-week internships from June 22 to Aug. 3 to 20 students who will graduate from high school this year.

Graduating seniors may apply for positions in various departments and offices in the Institution in areas including biology, history, library science, photography, public relations, veterinary science, art and computers.

Students selected will receive a living allowance of $800 and free housing in a nearby university dormitory. For interns who live outside the greater Washington, D.C., area. the Institution will provide transportation to and from the nation's capital. The program has been designed to enable students to pursue their own interests while assisting the work of the Institution. Acceptance is based on a demonstrated interest in a particular subject or career. Priority is given to applications who without financial aid would be unable to participate. Interns also participate in enrichment activities, such as tours typically not available to most tourists. For example, in past years interns have visited the Organization of American States, the Japanese Information and Cultural Center, the Frederick Douglass House, the Islamic Center, and the Voice of America. Interns also share their experiences with each other in seminars and informal gatherings.

The Smithsonian Institution invites students from all social, ethnic and cultural groups to apply for the internships, including students from minority groups and students with disabilities.

Krewe of Nereids 30th anniversary Bal Masque

The Krewe of Nereids will paradé Sunday at 1 p.m. in Waveland. In a celebration of celebrations, the Krewe of Nereids presented its 30th Anniversary Ball Saturday night at the Mississippi Gulf Coast Coliseum by taking its guests on a tour of celebrations around the world.

The strong sense of tradition of the krewe was especially evident on this anniversary evening, as the captain, her granddaughter, Queen Doris XXX, and her daughter, herself a former queen, occupied the stage at the same time.

A brilliant fireworks display marked the explosive entrance of the captain, who wore a soft aqua sheath of crystalline organza decorated with a celebration of silver sequins and individually set Austrian crystals. Her collar with its dramatic aqua plumage and red firecrackers captured the spirit of celebration.

Reigning as queen of Nereids, Doris XXX, greeted her royal subjects in a gown of jeweled metallic lace over satin and beaded with Austrian crystals and Aurora Borealis teardrops. Bands of rhinestones and pearls fringed the shoulders. Her majesty's scalloped collar was of the same imported silver lace totally jeweled in Austrian Crystals, pearls and rhinestones.

An Aurora Borealis crystal adorned each scallop. The traditional royal train of silver lame trimmed in hermine featured a motif depicting the Nereids 30th anniversary theme of Celebration.

Following the Nereids tradi-tion, the identities of Queen Doris and her maids are never revealed. The attire of King Nereus XXX, Keith A. Ladner, matched in design that of her royal highness. Celebrations around the world came alive as the maids and dukes of the royal court appeared. The maid representing the Quebec winter carnival wore an hermine-trimmed gown displaying a winter wonderland of white sequined snowflakes on a royal blue and white background. The collar featuring a mass of royal blue plumes repeated the sequined snowflakes of the crystaltrimmed gown.

The second maid's gown recalled the Cannes Film Festival's celebration of celluloid achievements. A fantasy in black and silver, the gown was a combination of plush velvet, silver lame and dramatic brocade. Details of Austrian crystals and sequins recalled the glamour of the Mediterranean film world. A choker'of rhinestones and jet-black jewels complemented the brocaded collar accented with silver sequins and matching black feathers.

The maid portraying India's Independence Day celebration wore a gown featuring an Eastern-inspired gold lame bodice and apron over an imported red silk sari. The headpiece was a traditional Indian turban of gold lame adorned with ruby and crystal medallion and earrings. Canary-yellow plumes encircled the architectural design of her collar of red and gold. Matching red ostrich plumes fell from the gold sequined wristbands. Splendidly rich hues of red, green and gold brought to mind the celebration of Christmas round the world in the gown of the next maid. The Christmas theme was carried out with masses of red sequined poinsettias on a green lame' dress and train. The Medici collar featured brilliant poinsettias and a profusion of Christmas-green plumes. A crown of green, red and gold jewels complemented her attire.

The fifth maid brought to life the Aloha Festival Pageant. Her gown and train of seafoamgreen satin was adorned with sequined bird of paradise flowers and parrots. A sculptured peplum at the waist followed the theme of a tropical paradise. A fantasia-plumed collar completed her attire.

A Celebration of Queen Elizabeth's birthday was portrayed in the crimson velvet gown of the maid depicting the Beefeaters of London. Regal appliques and geometric trim of metallic braid and sequins recalled the pomp and circumstance of the British royalty. Gold sequined floral designs decorated the underskirt and train of white satin. A crowned lion and sequined unicorn adorned the ebony plumbed collar.

Representing the extravagance of carnival in Rio, the next maid's gown was a profusion of vivid tropical colors. Multi-ruffled sleeves, hemline and demi train set the mood for the collection of sequined fruit appliques. Accenting the satin and organza creation were insertions of vivid velvets trimmed with pompoms and metallic braid. The interesting neckline danced with beaded fringe. A colorful collar backed with sculptured white and fuschia plumes was complemented by the splendor of a jeweled

The last maid brought to mind the Stratford Shakespearean Festival where comedy and drama evoke the spirit of William Shakespeare, the center of all literary celebrations through the ages. Mirrors defined the empire-waisted gown of rich Elizabethan tapestry accented with sequins and crystals. A dramatic archangel sleeve was completed at the wrist with an edging of lace. The heart-shaped Shakespearean collar of matching brocade was outlined with harlequin-shaped iewels and red plumes. Emerald cut rubies, pearls, sequins and brocade encircled the headpiece.

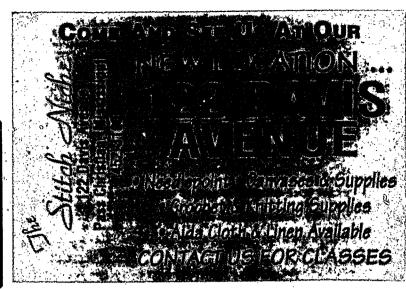

At the captain's whistle, guests were invited to recall the special times spend in celebrating the happy moments of their lives. As the tableau unfolded, krewe members presented a series of music and dance extravaganzas in celebration of New Year's, a Jewish wedding, rodeo prize winners, carnival in Rio, and, the most fabulous of all celebrations — Mardi Gras. In concluding the magic and make-believe of the evening, the Krewe of Nereids staged the parade of parades across the ballroom floor as floats, bands and marching groups filled the Dukes to his Majesty, King Nereus XXX were Messrs. Joseph W. Gex II, Charles A. Breath, Douglas Seal, Lucien M. Gex III, Michael S. Wyatt, William B. Zimmermann Jr., Robert Matthew Richmond, and Kevin Michael Champagne.

Trainbearers to their majesties were Masters Heath Charles Hansell, Brooks Kidd Bre-land, Timothy Kyle Kulikowski and Ryan Michael Dedeaux.

Farm cost and returns survey

By Franklin A. Gennin

beet and other commodities? Which management practices lead to financial success? How may farmers and ranchers are using contracts for marketing their commodities?

To answer these and other questions, a Farm Costs and Returns Survey will be conducted February through April by the Mississippi Agricultural Statistics Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

Less than one percent of the nation's two million farm operators will be asked to report on their agricultural income and expenses assets and liabilities, cost of producing various commodities, production practices, and operating characteristics. Every participant farm operator is an important contributor to the welfare of the agricultural community. *

Information from the previous survey was used to set costof-production estimates, from which program supports and loans were calculated.

A farmer should cooperate in this survey in order to protect financial interest. Commodity analysts, policymaker, university extension economist, Congress, USDA and producer organizations use the Farm Cost and Returns Survey data to provide services that help keep U.S. agriculture healthy.

They use it to develop and adjust farm programs delivered by local county offices, to help university and extension personnel design education programs for farmers and ranchers. allow input suppliers to plan in

The Farm Costs and Returns Survey is the only study used to examine the roles of both farming and off-farming employment among family farms. Also producers are asked about where they get and how they use new information.

The current survey will cover events issues such as: How adverse weather in 1995 affected producers' net income and cash flow; management strategies farmers use to ensure the success of their business; production costs for specific commodities - corn, beef, milk, wheat, etc.; the economic impact of specialty commodity production; and how farm operators are using technology.

Information from the survey is merged, processed and released in various USDA reports. Data from previous years results in a variety of publications. To inquire about additional reports, call 1-800-535-9609 1-703-834-0125.

If you are interviewed for the current Farm Costs and Returns Survey, you will be providing valuable help to the agricultural community.
